Assemblin Electrical has signed an agreement to acquire Svagströmsbolaget i Uppsala AB, a service company with 12 employees and annual sales of about SEK 21 million. The company specialises in the installation and service of fibre-optic computer networks.

Svagströmsbolaget i Uppsala AB is based in the city of Uppsala, north of Stockholm, and also operates in Stockholm, Västerås and Gävle, primarily within the telecommunications sector, holding agreements with several major operators such as Telenor, Bahnhof and Global Connect. The company offers services including fibre blowing, installation of fibre-optics, office networks, as well as upgrading of computer networks and maintenance of existing networks.

“We are pleased to be able to strengthen our expertise in fibre-optics and networks in Uppsala and its surroundings. Svagströmsbolaget has a good reputation and a solid customer base, and we are happy to welcome them to our company,” says Fredrik Allthin, EVP and Head of Division, Assemblin Caverion Group in Sweden.

The transaction will be closed in September.

“We look forward to becoming part of Assemblin and continuing to develop our operations supported by a strong, long-term owner. This generates new opportunities for our customers and employees alike,” says Anders Wennås, CEO of Svagströmsbolaget.
